Rural South Asian Studies

Rural South Asian Studies Journal is an exclusive venture where we have attempted to explore linkages and political-cultural connections in South Asian Societies. The journal aims to develop critical ideas on less explored and innovative themes in rural South Asian social, cultural, art, architectural, political, and economic histories, sociological, economic, environmental and developmental issues. Scholars engaged with debates in literature, social sciences and environmental and physical sciences about the regions in South Asia can submit articles on a particular theme thus initiating a dialogue on theoretical and methodological issues pertaining to the objectives of the journal. RSAS also publishes reviews on significant new publications and medial initiatives on the theme. Each issue aims to promote rigorous scholarship helpful in understanding our past and present discourses and its contradictions.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Articles or other materials for publication may be submitted to any one of the editors, whose addresses are given on the inside of the front cover. Contributors should submit two copies of the articles (if in hard copy), or email the article, in double line spacing with reasonable margins, whether typed on A4 paper or computer typed/printed. Articles should normally be between 5000-8000 words, but longer articles will be considered. An Abstract of about 150 words should also be supplied with five suitable key words for the article. The material submitted should be submitted in a format suitable for software operations. However, the publisher reserves the right to typeset material by conventional means of the authors version of type settings proves unsatisfactory. For further details please contact one of the editors.

STYLE

Contributors should aim for a style that is accessible to readers in related disciplines. Masculine forms used as universals e.g. 'the doctors and his works' should be avoided. Articles may be either in English (UK) or English (US).

CITATIONS

Contributors may follow either of the standard conventions:

a) in-text citations of sources b) citation in footnotes

a) In-text citations: Give author's surname, date of publication, and page references (if any) in parentheses in the body of the text, e.g. '(Radheshyam, 1980a:119) or (Radheshyam, 1980b:35). Where a second or subsequent work by a particular author in the same year is cited, references should be distinguished by letters (a, b, c etc.) placed after the date. A complete list of reference cited, arranged alphabetically by authors's surname, should be typed double-spaced at the end of the article in the form:

Books
